DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claim 1 limits “the air flow approaching the turbine wheel is carried onward or deflected at an acute angle to the vertical axis (40) of the turbine wheel (38), in particular an angle of less than 50^o”. This language may cause confusion in determining the scope of the claim. It is not clear if the stressed language is a preference (which should be more properly set forth in the specification) or a limitation. As such, the examiner interprets the claim to read broadly on the acute angle, until the claim can be further defined. Please refer to MPEP 2173.05(d). See also claim 8 “a surface sander, in particular as an orbital sander”, again, it is not clear if the stressed language is to be interpreted as a limitation.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) or (e) as being clearly anticipated by Hoffmann et al, 2005/0221739. Please refer to figure 1. Note that the examiner considers 44, the forward-guiding vane row, to be the upstream baffle. Note that the air flow is deflected at an acute angle to the vertical axis of the turbine wheel, which meets the claim as interpreted by the examiner, see the rejection under 35 USC 112, second paragraph above. Further, '739 discloses that the baffle serves as a bearing seat for a bearing of the axial shaft, and with downstream baffle at 16, forms a labyrinth seal. The upstream baffle reinforces the housing. the on-off switch is a radio-controlled switch [0048]. The tool is a surface sander [0026].

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Other similar turbine driven tools are cited of interest.
